REASONS FOR ALLOWANCE

1. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

The Examiner agrees with the following remarks by Applicant:

"As indicated in amended claim 14, the friction surfaces include at least an axial force component and at least one of the first friction surface and the third friction surface and at least one of the second friction surface and the fourth friction surface include a radial directional force component. This feature is neither taught nor suggested by the German patent or the other prior art of record. The friction rings in the German patent provide only an axial force component and do not provide a radial force component which, as mentioned, improves transmission efficiency. Furthermore, claim 15 has been amended to specify that the input shaft and the output shaft each include a wheel with a conical surface opening towards the body. The German patent, to the contrary, discloses a conical surface opening in the other direction which, while permitting an axial force component, does not permit a radial force component between the friction surfaces of the transmission. Additionally, claim 16 has been amended in a similar fashion to permit the existence of both the axial force component and radial force component. This feature is neither taught nor suggested by the German patent."

Additionally, note the upper part of Applicant's push belt adapts to the radius of the friction disk 3, while the lower part of the push belt also adapts to the radius of the rotatable body 7. Due to this simultaneous adaptation to both radii, a better and more efficient power transfer is achieved. The fixed friction rings (d) disclosed in the German patent are not capable of conforming in such a fashion.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."

Drawings

2. The drawing received on 7/26/04 has been approved. This drawing has not been held as new matter since the originally filed disclosure (claims) had a recitation of "mutually abutting push links" and the drawing merely shows separate links which are abutting. It is the Examiner's position that this is supported by the original disclosure.
